This has gone on far too long. I think it is too strong against Microsoft. It requires that Microsoft disclose all the interface and related technical information for the middleware use and much more I don't think is fair. If Microsoft is smart enough to have figured it all out why do they have to give it away. Let the competitors come up with another way to get their middleware to be compatible. It seems to me you are punishing someone, who has been creative, because the other party can't come up with a better idea and product. If Microsoft agreed then let's get it over with and move on.
